Your forecast is built from this chart and from every major contact the slow moving planets, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto, make with it over the next 12 months. Every position and date is calculated precisely for your time and place of birth.

Your year in a sentence

This is a year of quiet but profound rebuilding of your public self: Pluto sits on your natal Mars in your tenth house of career for the whole twelve months, Uranus in your first house sends supportive trines to both Mars and Venus, and a cluster of eclipses across your fourth and tenth houses asks you to decide, with real honesty, what you want to be known for and what kind of home base will carry that ambition.

The big themes

Pluto on your natal Mars in the tenth house. Pluto is within one degree of your Mars at 2° Aquarius right now and stays close all year, turning retrograde on 8 May at 7° Aquarius (on your natal Venus) and direct again on 18 October at 4° Aquarius. With Mars and Venus both in your tenth house in your birth chart, your drive and your charm have always been tied to your professional standing. Pluto here is a slow intensifier: ambitions you have held loosely become serious, and anything in your working life that runs on borrowed power or old habit comes under pressure. You may feel more determined than you have in years, and also more aware of who holds the real authority around you. The invitation is to use that force on something that matters to you, rather than on a struggle for its own sake. Your natal Moon in Libra squares Mars, so you have always had to balance ambition against the wish to keep things pleasant. This year the ambition is louder, and that is not a bad thing.

Uranus in your first house, trine Mars and Venus. Uranus moved into Gemini and your first house of self, and it makes exact trines to your Mars on 5 January and 14 March, and to your Venus on 14 July. With Taurus rising you tend to change slowly and only when you are sure. Uranus in the first house loosens that. These trines are easy, energising aspects: fresh ways of presenting yourself, new skills, a different look or a different daily rhythm can arrive without the usual resistance. Combined with Pluto in the tenth, this is the year you may find yourself updating the version of you that the world sees.

Saturn in your twelfth house, sextile Venus and opposite your Moon. Saturn in Aries occupies your twelfth house of rest, privacy and the inner life. Its sextile to your Venus is exact on 18 November and 2 January, a steadying influence on relationships and on how you value yourself, grounded in the quiet work you do behind the scenes. Then on 9 August Saturn stations retrograde at 27° Aries, opposite your natal Moon at 29° Libra in the sixth house. That is the most demanding Saturn moment of the year: your emotional needs and your workload may feel at odds, and you will want to be honest about what you can carry. Neptune, newly in Aries, softens the edges with its sextile to Mars on 26 January, lending imagination to your ambition.

The year's big moments in your chart

Eclipses. The annular solar eclipse on 6 February at 17° Aquarius lands in your tenth house of career, close to your natal North Node at 14° Aquarius, so it has the flavour of direction and purpose. New starts in your public role are the theme. The penumbral lunar eclipse on 20 February at 1° Virgo falls in your fifth house of romance, creativity and children: something you have been giving your heart to reaches a turning point. The lunar eclipse on 18 July at 25° Capricorn is the one to watch most closely. It sits in your ninth house of beliefs, study and the wider world, on your natal Saturn at 23° Capricorn and on your Midheaven at 29° Capricorn. Saturn is the ruler of your Midheaven, so this eclipse touches the very structure of your life direction and the beliefs that underpin it. The total solar eclipse on 2 August at 9° Leo is in your fourth house of home and family, opposite your natal Venus at 8° Aquarius. Home and career, private affection and public image, pull in different directions, and the eclipse asks for a new balance. Finally, the lunar eclipse on 17 August at 24° Aquarius returns to your tenth house, closing the loop that February opened.

Mercury retrograde. Mercury is already retrograde as the year begins and turns direct on 13 November at 5° Scorpio in your sixth house, clearing confusion around work routines. It retrogrades again from 9 February at 5° Pisces in your eleventh house to 3 March at 20° Aquarius in your tenth, a period for revisiting group plans and professional conversations, and it begins while Mercury sits close to your natal Sun and Mercury. The summer retrograde runs from 10 June at 6° Cancer to 4 July at 27° Gemini, both in your second house of money and self worth: a time to review budgets rather than sign anything new. The last one runs from 7 October at 4° Scorpio to 28 October at 19° Libra, back in your sixth house of daily work and health habits.

Venus and Mars. Venus turns direct on 14 November at 22° Libra in your sixth house, easing a stalled situation at work or in a daily relationship. Mars retrogrades from 10 January at 10° Virgo in your fifth house to 1 April at 20° Leo in your fourth. Mars is your natal tenth house planet now sitting under Pluto, so this retrograde is about redirecting energy away from the public stage and towards creative life, pleasure and home. Pushing hard in those months tends to produce less than patience does.

Jupiter and Saturn. Jupiter retrogrades from 13 December at 27° Leo in your fifth house to 13 April at 16° Leo in your fourth. Jupiter squares your Ascendant on 17 February and 6 June, a pair of dates when optimism can outrun practicality, then sextiles your Moon on 21 July, opposes your Mercury on 27 October and trines your Ascendant on 6 November 2027, a far more comfortable ending. Saturn turns direct on 10 December at 7° Aries and retrograde on 9 August at 27° Aries, the latter opposite your Moon, as discussed above.

Month by month

November 2026

The year opens with two planets turning direct in your sixth house of work routines and health: Mercury on 13 November at 5° Scorpio and Venus on 14 November at 22° Libra. Anything that has felt stuck in your daily schedule, a project that would not move, a colleague you could not quite read, starts to loosen in the second half of the month. The New Moon on 9 November at 16° Scorpio also sits in the sixth house and lands right on your natal Pluto at 17° Scorpio. Pluto in your sixth has always given you an all or nothing approach to work and wellbeing. This New Moon is a good moment to set one deep, honest intention about how you want your working days to feel.

Saturn's sextile to your Venus is exact on 18 November. This is a mature, supportive influence on love and money: commitments feel more solid, and you may find quiet satisfaction in a relationship or a financial plan that is built slowly. The Full Moon on 24 November at 2° Gemini falls in your first house, close to where Uranus is travelling. You may feel a strong urge to be seen differently, and this is a fine time to let others notice a change in you.

December 2026

The New Moon on 9 December at 16° Sagittarius falls in your seventh house of partnership. With Pluto still sitting on your Mars in the tenth, the question of how a close relationship supports or competes with your ambitions is live. Use this New Moon to talk plainly with a partner or business associate about what you each want from the coming year. Saturn turns direct on 10 December in your twelfth house and Neptune turns direct on 12 December in your eleventh: inner clarity and clearer hopes about your friendships and future both return.

Jupiter turns retrograde on 13 December at 27° Leo in your fifth house. Expansion in romance, creative work or matters involving children slows for four months, which is a chance to deepen rather than widen. The Full Moon on 24 December at 2° Cancer lands in your second house on your natal Jupiter at 1° Cancer. Jupiter in the second house is your natural generosity and your sense that there will always be enough. This Full Moon may bring a financial matter to a head over the festive period, and the healthy response is gratitude paired with a realistic look at the numbers.

January 2027

This is a strong month for your professional energy. Saturn sextile Venus is exact again on 2 January, Uranus trine Mars is exact on 5 January, and Neptune sextile Mars follows on 26 January. Discipline, innovation and imagination all feed into your tenth house planets at once. You may find an unconventional idea at work is met with more enthusiasm than you expected, and a new method or tool suits you unusually well. The New Moon on 7 January at 17° Capricorn falls in your ninth house of study, travel and beliefs, so planning a course, a trip or a formal qualification fits the mood.

Mars turns retrograde on 10 January at 10° Virgo in your fifth house. From here until April, direct effort on the public stage brings diminishing returns, while creative work, play and time with loved ones replenish you. The Full Moon on 22 January at 2° Leo sits in your fourth house, exactly opposite your natal Mars and within three degrees of opposing your Midheaven. Home versus career comes into sharp focus. Something at home may need the energy you have been giving to work, and this is a moment to rebalance rather than resent it.

February 2027

The eclipse season begins. The annular solar eclipse on 6 February at 17° Aquarius is in your tenth house of career, near your natal North Node. Eclipses in the tenth tend to bring a visible change in role, title or reputation, and with Pluto on your Mars this one feels like the opening of a longer chapter. Avoid forcing a decision on the day itself; let the information settle. Uranus turns direct on 8 February in your first house, and the next day, 9 February, Mercury turns retrograde at 5° Pisces in your eleventh house. Group commitments, friendships and plans for the future may need a second look over the next three weeks.

Jupiter squares your Ascendant on 17 February, a date when confidence can tip into overreach. Enjoy the optimism but double check the practical side. The penumbral lunar eclipse on 20 February at 1° Virgo falls in your fifth house of romance, creativity and children. A creative project or a relationship that began in the fifth house mood of last year may reach a turning point, and feelings are easier to see clearly in eclipse light than under ordinary moons.

March 2027

Mercury turns direct on 3 March at 20° Aquarius in your tenth house, close to the degree of the February eclipse, so professional conversations that stalled in February can be picked up with better information. The New Moon on 8 March at 17° Pisces is in your eleventh house and lands on your natal Mercury at 19° Pisces. Your Mercury trines Pluto, giving you a mind that goes deep rather than wide. This New Moon is excellent for joining a group, pitching an idea to friends or committing to a shared goal that genuinely engages you.

Uranus trine Mars is exact for the second time on 14 March, your birthday. A birthday that falls on an exact Uranus trine suggests a solar year ahead marked by freedom and reinvention in your working life. The Full Moon on 22 March at 1° Libra in your fifth house closes the month on an emotional, romantic note. With Mars still retrograde, keep the pace gentle.

April 2027

Mars turns direct on 1 April at 20° Leo in your fourth house, and Jupiter follows on 13 April at 16° Leo, also in your fourth. The engine restarts, and it restarts at home. Plans for your living space, your family or your sense of roots pick up speed, and the energy you were asked to withdraw from work in winter can now be reinvested with better judgement. The New Moon on 7 April at 16° Aries in your twelfth house favours a quiet start: rest, reflection or a private intention set before the public push.

The Full Moon on 20 April at 0° Scorpio falls in your sixth house, on your natal Moon at 29° Libra. Your Moon in the sixth means you feel safest when your routines are in order and you are useful. This Full Moon may bring a strong emotional response to your workload or wellbeing. Treat it as a reading on how sustainable your current rhythm is.

May 2027

The New Moon on 6 May at 15° Taurus falls in your twelfth house and sits opposite your natal Pluto. Pluto opposes your Ascendant natally, so questions of control and intimacy in close relationships are part of your make up. This New Moon encourages you to let go of something privately rather than to act publicly. Two days later, on 8 May, Pluto turns retrograde at 7° Aquarius, on your natal Venus at 8° Aquarius in the tenth house. From here until October, Pluto revisits the territory of your professional relationships and what you value in your career. You may feel the intensity of a working partnership or a question of recognition more strongly, and the useful question is what you truly want from it.

The Full Moon on 20 May at 29° Scorpio in your seventh house brings a partnership to a point of clarity. With Pluto now stationed on Venus, honesty in love is both harder and more necessary. There are no exact personal transits this month, which makes it a good time to consolidate the home changes begun in April.

June 2027

The New Moon on 4 June at 13° Gemini falls in your first house, the sign Uranus is reshaping. A fresh start in how you present yourself, a new routine or even a new way of speaking about what you do, suits this month. Jupiter squares your Ascendant for the second time on 6 June: once again, enthusiasm is high and the risk is promising more than you can deliver.

Mercury turns retrograde on 10 June at 6° Cancer in your second house of money and stays retrograde until 4 July. This is a review period for budgets, contracts and anything related to income. Mistakes in paperwork are more likely, so read everything twice. The Full Moon on 19 June at 27° Sagittarius in your eighth house of shared resources rounds out a month where money matters, especially shared or borrowed money, want careful attention.

July 2027

A busy and important month. Mercury turns direct on 4 July at 27° Gemini in your second house, and the same day the New Moon at 11° Cancer in your third house sits opposite your natal Uranus and Neptune in the ninth. Old beliefs and new information meet; a conversation, a course or a short trip could change your mind about something you thought settled. Neptune turns retrograde on 9 July in your twelfth house, drawing you inward.

Uranus trine Venus is exact on 14 July. This is one of the sweetest transits of the year: unexpected pleasure in love, a surprising boost to your professional appeal, or a creative breakthrough. Then the penumbral lunar eclipse on 18 July at 25° Capricorn arrives in your ninth house, on your natal Saturn and on your Midheaven. This is the structural eclipse of the year. Saturn rules your Midheaven, so beliefs about duty, authority and what a career should look like are illuminated. A long held assumption about your path may be ready for revision. Jupiter sextile your Moon on 21 July brings emotional relief and support from others just when you need it.

August 2027

The total solar eclipse on 2 August at 9° Leo in your fourth house, opposite your natal Venus, is the emotional centre of the year. Home, family and roots call for a new beginning, and that new beginning sits opposite the planet that governs your affections and your professional charm. You may feel pulled between the people you love and the role you are building. The answer is rarely one or the other; it is usually a renegotiation of how much of you each side gets.

Saturn turns retrograde on 9 August at 27° Aries in your twelfth house, opposite your natal Moon. This is the month to protect your energy. Responsibilities may feel heavy and rest may feel hard to come by, and the sixth house Moon's instinct to keep serving needs a limit. The penumbral lunar eclipse on 17 August at 24° Aquarius in your tenth house completes the career thread that began in February, with results becoming visible. The New Moon on 31 August at 8° Virgo in your fifth house offers a gentler close: a creative intention or time with children and loved ones.

September 2027

A calmer month with no exact personal transits, which is a gift after August. The bigger themes continue underneath: Pluto retrograde in your tenth house keeps the professional questions simmering, and Saturn retrograde in the twelfth is still asking you to honour your limits. Uranus turns retrograde on 15 September at 9° Gemini in your first house, slowing the pace of personal reinvention so you can integrate what has already changed.

The Full Moon on 16 September at 22° Pisces lands in your eleventh house, on your natal Sun at 23° Pisces. This is a moment of recognition from friends, a community or a network: you may see clearly who your people are and what you are here to contribute among them. The New Moon on 30 September at 6° Libra in your sixth house is well suited to resetting your routines after a demanding summer.

October 2027

Mercury turns retrograde on 7 October at 4° Scorpio in your sixth house and direct on 28 October at 19° Libra, still in the sixth. Daily work, systems and health habits come under review for the third time this year, so this is a chance to fix what you noticed but did not have time to change. The Full Moon on 15 October at 21° Aries in your twelfth house encourages a private reckoning with what the year has asked of you.

Pluto turns direct on 18 October at 4° Aquarius, between your natal Mars and Venus in the tenth. The professional intensity that has been building and revisiting since May now moves forward, and decisions deferred can be made with the benefit of a long look. Jupiter opposes your Mercury on 27 October from your fifth house: ideas and offers may feel bigger than they are, so enjoy the creative stretch but keep a note of the details. The New Moon on 29 October at 5° Scorpio in your sixth house sets up the month that follows, and Jupiter's trine to your Ascendant on 6 November 2027 closes the twelve months on a note of confidence and ease.

- 6 November 2027: Jupiter trine Ascendant, the year ends on confidence.

Making the most of your year

Decide what you want Pluto to build. With Pluto on your Mars in the tenth house all year, your ambition has force behind it. Choose one professional aim you genuinely care about and direct the intensity there, rather than letting it spill into power struggles with colleagues or clients. The February and August eclipses in your tenth house are natural milestones for checking progress.

Use the Mars retrograde and the fourth house eclipse to invest in home. January to April asks you to pull energy back from the public stage, and the 2 August eclipse opposite your Venus asks what your private life needs. Making your living space and family relationships a real priority in those windows will give you a stronger base for the career push that follows.

Honour your limits around the August Saturn station. Saturn opposite your sixth house Moon on 9 August is the point in the year when you are most likely to overcommit out of duty. Plan lighter weeks on either side of that date, keep sleep and routine steady, and let others carry their share.

Let Uranus update your image. The trines from Uranus in your first house to Mars in January and March and to Venus in July are easy, generous aspects. Say yes to the new skill, the different look, the unusual opportunity. With Taurus rising you will want to be sure first, but this year the risk of changing too little is greater than the risk of changing too much.
